Question

Answer

DMDP
extension

Can the project be an extension of a DMDP project?

No, a DGBP project cannot be a direct extension of a DMDP project and all applications are assessed based on the same criteria. If a partnership can argue and demonstrate increased additionality and added value in form of new value chains, additional sectors or stakeholders etc. the project will be assessed. Important to note that commercial partners can only be supported for a maximum of 5 years.

Project type

What kind of projects are eligible for funding?

Partnerships can apply for two kinds of projects:

- Full projects
- Maturation projects

It is a requirement that all projects address green transition.

It is possible and desirable that maturation project eventually turn into full projects. Note that this is not granted, and that a maturation project needs to submit a full project application along with all other applicants.

Can consultancy firms and multilateral organisations be part of the project?

Yes, both consultancy firms and multilateral organisations can be part of the project.

Multilateral organisations can, however, not be administrative partner and the project has to revolve around an on-the-ground business case hence making the business of consultancy as such in-eligible for funding.
